The Greater Worcester Land Trust has conserved over 1,500 acres of open space, primarily within Worcester. All of this land is accessible to the public. Now our community is faced with a challenge, the Asian Longhorned Beetle. Parts of Worcester County are quarantined as the USDA and others look for infested trees. Early detection of infestations and rapid response are crucial to successful eradication of the beetle. The Land Trust is pulling together a volunteer corps to survey conservation lands in the Worcester area. The sooner we identify the beetles the better our chances of saving our forests from massive tree loss.
